4. Organizing research circle / internal seminar / interactive session on research

Organization of Research Circle:

Teacher educators are a part of the biannual PhD research presentations done by the research scholars of the PhD centre of PCER. The teacher educators get an insight into the latest research conducted by the scholars. They get an opportunity to stay abreast of current trends, emerging theories, and innovative practices in education. They engage in constructive discussions, provide feedback, and offer guidance to the scholars, thus contributing to the development and refinement of their research projects. It offers scope for teacher educators to identify potential areas for collaboration, further research, or integration into their own teaching practices, thereby fostering a dynamic and mutually beneficial relationship between academia and professional practice. The biannual PhD research presentations play a crucial role in fostering a culture of research excellence and continuous learning within the academic community at PCER.

Interaction Session on Research:

The teacher educators participate in the annual Research Forum gathering organized by Mahatma Education Society. This interaction session is designed to facilitate meaningful discussions, knowledge exchange, and networking opportunities among teacher educators, fostering a collaborative and innovative approach to research in education.

Internal Seminar

- On February 1, 2020, the Research Cell hosted a session titled "Literature Review Tips" for research scholars and faculty members. Dr. Priam Pillai, COO of Mahatma Education Society, shared insights on the importance of literature reviews, how to find relevant papers, and software tools for organizing research. He emphasized the need for critical analysis rather than simple summarization, encouraging researchers to assess methodologies and identify strengths, weaknesses, and potential flaws in findings. The session provided clear guidelines for conducting effective literature reviews.

- Paper presentations at National Level seminars:

Every year the college organizes two National Level Seminars on topics pertaining to current issues. The teacher educators are encouraged to present research papers and also publish those papers in the Seminar proceedings. The teacher educators also collaborate with student teachers to present papers. By actively engaging educators and student teachers in scholarly endeavors, the college not only nurtures a vibrant ecosystem of intellectual exchange but also propels the boundaries of educational knowledge ever forward
